Back To School Bash The Shed and the Family Resources Center are teaming up to provide children with free school supplies and backpacks at the Back to School Bash from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, July 23, at the Henry County Fairgrounds.

It will be a drive-thru event again this year. While supplies last. Children must be present in vehicle.

Carroll County Active Living

Workshop Carroll County has been selected to participate as a pilot program for an Active Living Workshop presented by Health by Design and the Tennessee Department of Health. The workshop will be on Monday, July 25th 8:00 am – 4:00 pm (lunch provided) at Bethel University, Vera Low Center in Activities Room A & B. This workshop will provide Carroll County with the evidence-based tools needed to work toward creating a Parks and Recreation Master Plan for the county that could be utilized to secure grant funding. Competitive grants often require applicants to have this plan.

You do not have to attend all day, but please join the Carroll County Health Department however long you can! RSVP to Public Health Educator Robyn Hatler: robyn.hatler@tn.gov.

Cross Creeks NWR Canoe/Kayak

Event This weekend is going to be hot and a cool way to cool off is coming this weekend.

The Friends of Cross Creeks National Wildlife Refuge in Dover are planning a canoe/kayak event and reservations are needed. The event is free, but you need to reserve your spot. Saturday, July 23, 9 a.m. to noon.

This year they will be paddling over to a spring on the Cross Creeks NWR. It's a great turn around spot that allows folks to get a quick cooling off swim before paddling back. We have a limited number of canoes/kayaks for use or you can bring your own gear. Either way, you need to RSVP to 731-642-2091 or Joan_Howe@fws.gov.

Tennessee 4-H’ers Can Now Receive College Credit At UT Knoxville

In a unique agreement between the University of Tennessee Herbert College of Agriculture and UT Extension, which oversees the statewide Tennessee 4-H Program, senior level 4-H students can now apply for college credit in 10 project areas. The currently approved projects represent coursework in the Department of Animal Science or the Department of Agricultural Leadership, Education and Communications.

“I am more than thrilled to be able to announce this new collaboration between our Herbert College of Agriculture and UT Extension, said Carrie Castille, senior vice chancellor and senior vice president of the UT Institute of Agriculture. “I believe this is the first time that the dedication and in-depth knowledge of our 4-H’ers has been recognized on the college level. As a 4-H’er in my youth, I can tell you that every acknowledgment is valued as students launch their academic careers.”

“Of course, the students must reach certain benchmarks within each project,” says Ashley Stokes, dean of UT Extension. “We are working to add to the number of projects for which students can receive credit, but we must ensure the academic integrity of each college course and ensure that the 4-H project objectives and accomplishments line up with the college course requirements. Our faculty and specialists have worked collaboratively to make this innovative program possible.”

The new program was announced on July 19 at the annual 4-H Roundup at UT Martin by Castille. Roundup is a five-day event during which senior level 4-H’ers present their project portfolios to panels of experts who judge the presentations and the effort surrounding each project. The top-tier projects in certain categories earn the student scholarships and Roundup participants earn bragging rights for their efforts.

Stokes expects the college credits to be available beginning Fall Semester 2022.
